

AIR UNIVERSITY – INTERDISCIPLINARY RESEARCH

Promotion System - Interdisciplinary Research Amongst Science Disciplines

AU has a robust promotion system that recognizes interdisciplinary research at the university valuing interdisciplinary research, providing clear guidelines for evaluation, encouraging interdisciplinary collaborations, recognizing the challenges of interdisciplinary research, and fostering a culture of interdisciplinary research. Some of the measures include:-

- Value interdisciplinary research: The promotion system recognizes and values interdisciplinary research as an important contribution to the university's mission.
- Interdisciplinary collaborations: The promotion system provides additional credit for interdisciplinary research publications or grant proposals to the faculty members to engage in such collaborations.
- Recognize the challenges of interdisciplinary research: The promotion system recognizes that interdisciplinary research can be challenging, and that faculty members may need additional support to engage in such research.
- Foster a culture of interdisciplinary research: The promotion system has a system in place in recognizing and celebrating interdisciplinary research achievements. This is achieved through awards, public recognition, and other forms of support for interdisciplinary research.